

Headteacher message

I had a lovely time in a year 4 class today listening to the children consider extending the school day by one hour. At first they were not too keen however after realising that schools in Wales had been doing activities such as cooking and martial arts, many reconsidered. I am looking forward to seeing the writing they produce around this topic. Thank you year 4!

A gentle reminder to try to arrange medical appointments outside of school hours where it is at all possible. In the event that appointments have to take place during the school day, please let the office and your child's class teacher know in advance.

What happens when I call the SLP CAMHS Crisis Line?

When you call the crisis line the practitioner that answers the phone will introduce themselves by name and invite you to share with them your concerns and listen to you. They will ask you some details about your current situation and try to work with you to help reduce distress and establish safety.

What support might I receive when I call?

Our philosophy centres around providing person-centred care, this means practitioners will work with you to understand your needs and the best options available for you. The type of support available includes:

- A safe and supportive space to speak openly about concerns
- Psychological first aid and immediate crisis counselling
- Brief interventions, including CBT and DBT skills
- Professional consultation
- Brief psychoeducation, mental health advice and support
- Psychosocial assessment
- Risk assessment and safety planning
- Liaise with other professionals involved in the young person's care.

If you are unsure whether you need emergency services, crisis line practitioners can guide you.

SLP CAMHS Crisis Line

The SLP CAMHS Crisis Line is an urgent mental health helpline for all children and young people in South London. The line is operated by NHS trained child and adolescent mental health practitioners and advisors who provide crisis counselling and mental health support.

If you are under 18 years old and registered with a GP in South London, or you are worried about someone who is, you can call the SLP CAMHS Crisis Line for support and guidance.

What is a mental health crisis?

A mental health crisis means different things to different people.

- You may be concerned that mental health has been getting worse over time, or you might feel suddenly overwhelmed.
- You might feel unable to cope or as if you will not be able to cope for much longer.
- You might feel so distressed that you want to harm yourself or someone else.
- You might hear unpleasant voices or feel that people are watching you or trying to hurt you.

There is no one way to think or feel when in crisis, the crisis line practitioners will work with you to think about your journey.

Traffic Light: Getting help in a crisis

To explore support options, you could:

- Speak to your GP, who can put you in touch with local services.
- Speak to teachers or other school staff, many schools have staff who are dedicated to supporting mental health.
- Speak to a trusted adult. Don't suffer in silence.
- If you already have a CAMHS team, you can speak to them about how things are.

To get urgent help, you could:

- Use the guidance on your safety plan (if you already have one).
- Speak to someone you trust, let them know you need support.
- Contact SLP CAMHS Crisis Line for telephone support on 0203 228 5980 between 9am - 11pm, seven days a week.
- Call NHS111
- Reach out to other urgent help providers such as SHOUT or Kooth (see contact details overleaf).

Call 999 or attend A&E

If there is a threat of serious harm to physical health, even if caused by mental health needs, contacting emergency services is the safest option.

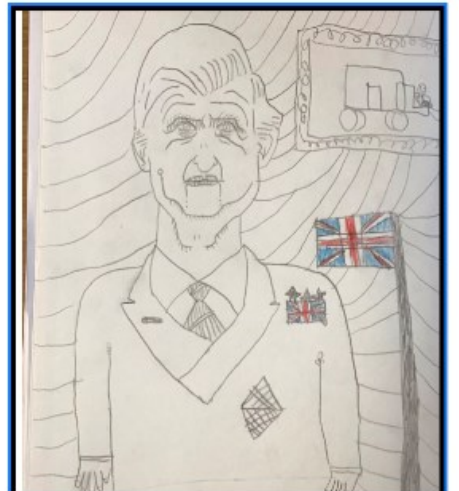

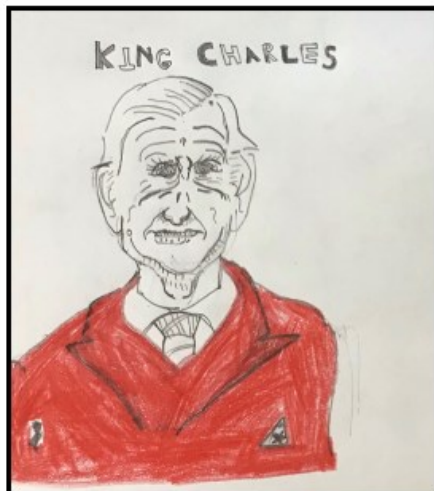

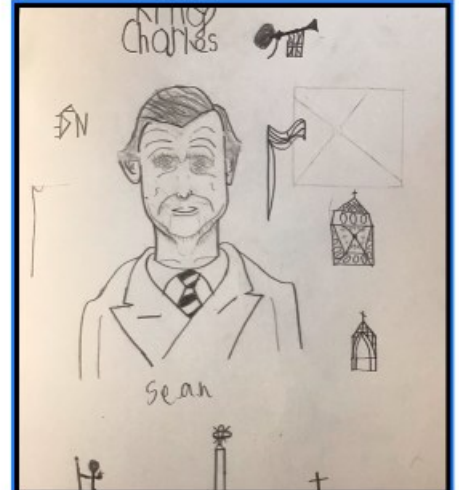

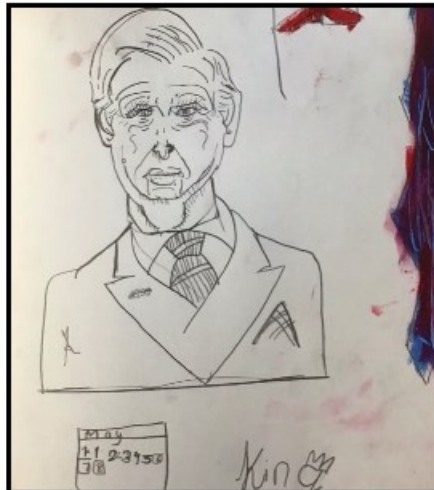

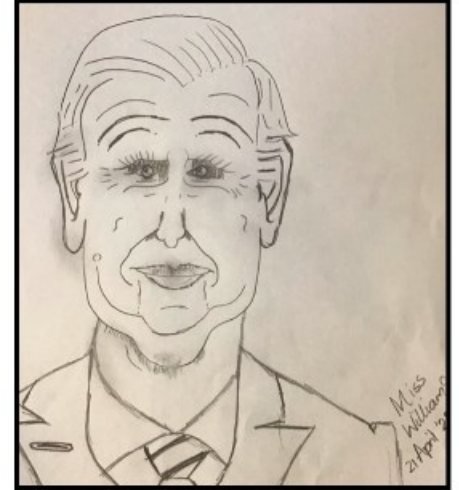

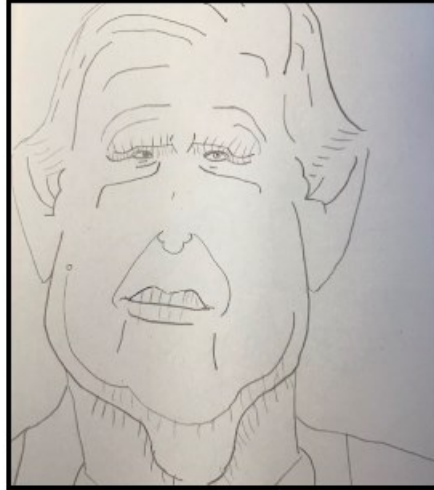

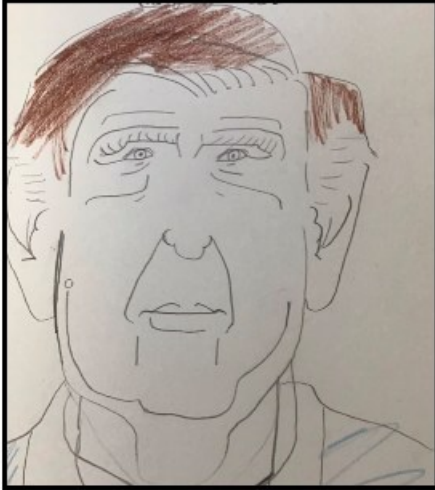

If anyone is at risk of serious harm, call 999 and ask for an ambulance, or the police.

Computing

In Rose Class, we have started a new topic in computing— Selection in quizzes. We used the laptops for our lesson—the children were so well engaged in their learning. They didn't want to stop. We are looking forward to our next lessons.

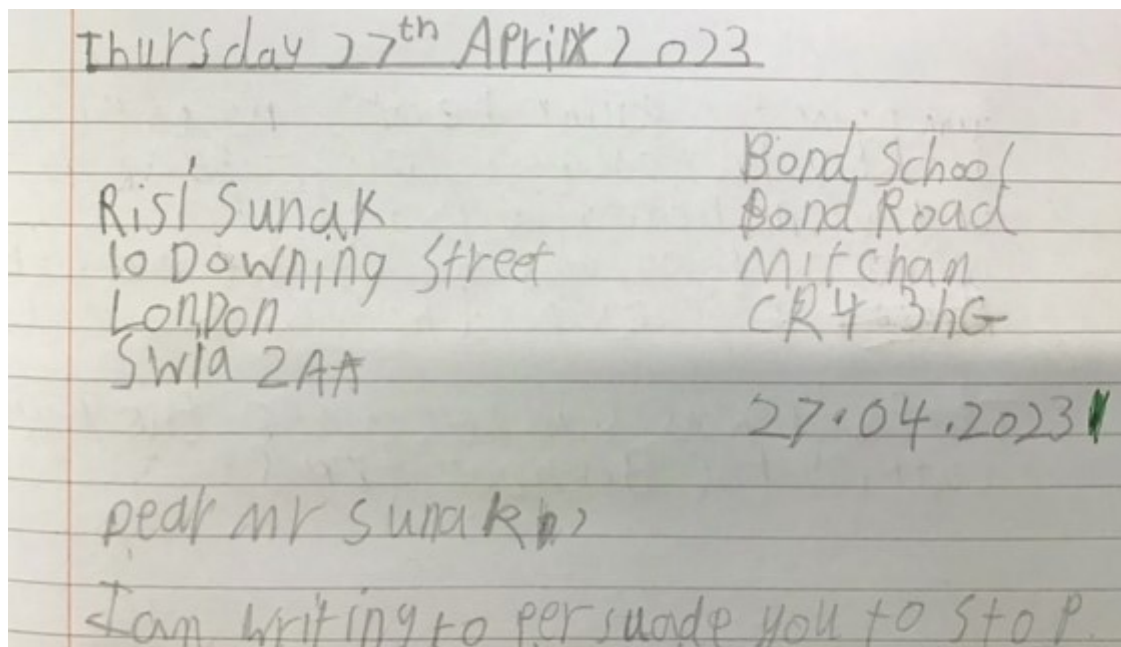

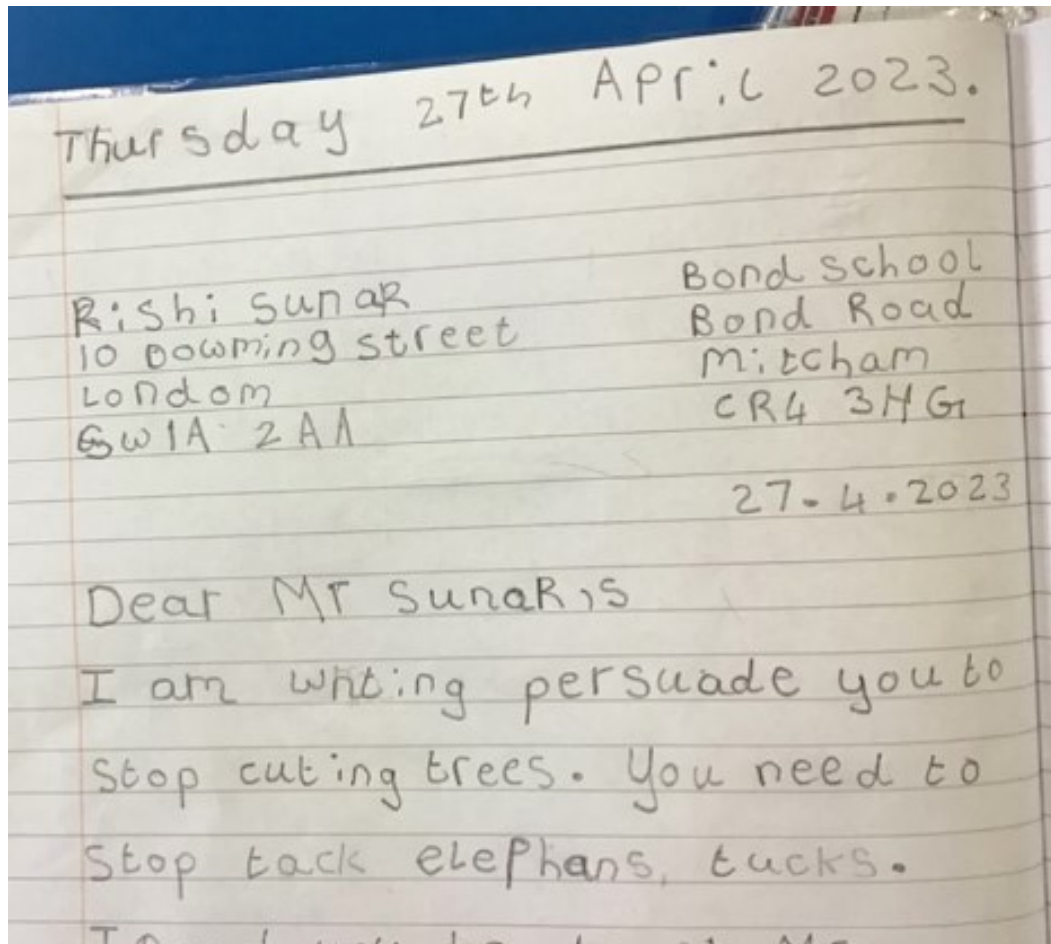

King Charles

In Rose Class, we have been discussing the imminent King's coronation.. To mark and honour this very special occasion , we tried our hand at King Charles portraits. What do you think?

Letter Writing

In Dahlia class, this week, we have started our letters to Prime Minister, Rishi Sunak, to persuade him to help the environment and stop the harming of animals and other wildlife. We looked at the features of a letter and how we should address someone who we don't know formally.

Science

Year 4 have been investigating which materials would work well if we needed to soundproof something. Each group had a sealed box containing rice, then they added particular material layer by layer. After each layer, they tested to see if the rice in the box could still be heard when they shook the box. We used cling film, aluminium foil, plastic, duct tape, newspaper and bubble wrap. Lots of children predicted that the bubble wrap would be the most effective.

Were they correct?

You'll have to ask someone in Lotus or Protea Class!
